A PROMINENT NATIVE DEAD

David L. Naone Passes
Away After Brief
Illness.

David L. Naone, one of the foremost Hawaiians in Honolulu in church and public affairs, died last evening at his residence on Beretania street, from paralysis, after a week's illness. He was attended by Dr. Wood. The deceased leaves a wife and a family of children, and several brothers.

Mr. Naone would have been forty-six years of age next month. He was one of the trustees of Kawaiahao Church, assistant superintendent of the Sunday school, and was known among his people and all who came in contact with him as a model Hawaiian. He was lately before the public as one of the members of the Board of Registration for the Island of Oahu, prior to the November election.

When the revolution of '95 broke out the deceased was one of the first men to go to Diamond Head and engage the rebels. He was a member of the National Guard, and was color sergeant of the First Regiment. A squad of honor will be detailed to accompany the remains to the grave. He was educated at the Royal School, this city, one of his instructors being Rev. Alexander Mackintosh.

The funeral will take place tomorrow afternoon at Kawaiahao Church at 3:30 o'clock.

Christmas at Wahiawa.

Wahiawa, Dec. 26.—A very pretty Christmas entertainment was given the Sunday school and residents of Wahiawa Christmas night by Mrs. W. B. Thomas. The entertainment consisted of a program, a real Santa Claus and a beautiful Christmas tree, which was found to contain the traditional plum in the shape of a charming present for each person in Wahiawa. Mrs. Thomas' generosity gave much pleasure. The Sunday school was founded by Mrs. Thomas nearly one year ago and she has mothered it through its infancy. Sixty-seven were present.
